

"Paris in Pelham" Fashion Show Event Last Friday

May 23, 2019

Photo credits: Thomas Bricker & Maurice Pinzon

Catherine Testorf, CEO of InSight Artspace, and Cherie Corso in collaboration with L'adresse NY presented "Paris in Pelham" last Friday at Catherine's home. Guests cheered and loved the interactive art exhibition experience pairing color and style between vibrant paintings and contemporary fashion.

It was a beautiful evening that transported invitees to Paris for the evening. Art functions as a bridge between people. Everyone had smiles on their faces while they enjoyed the experience. Men, women and children were captivated by the art, food, guests and creativity.

L'adresse NY brought the latest boutique trends from Paris, with a fashion show surrounded by the work of talented women Parisian designers. Everyone loved the art, French food and a chance to buy remarkable works of art and to shop for fahions that you would not find anywhere in the States.

Quotes from guests:

"When I got home I looked at my walls and wanted to buy all new artwork." "I felt so relaxed and happy after the event, it must be the artwork & wine and fun people." "Now I can cancel my trip, I just felt like I went to Paris." Artist Maizianne's statement:

"It is about my perception of the person, but most of the time the reflection and translation of my deepest – sometimes unknown - thoughts, moods and feelings. Each piece is unique. I want the viewer to identify himself with the subject and associate personal memories or feelings to what is viewed."

Right: Cherie Corso & InSight Artspace founder Catherine Testorf Below, Clockwise: Spectators watch the fashion show by L'adresse New York, Models Julian Testorf and Julia Corso show artwork by InSight Artspace and clothing by L'adresse New York, Models pose after the show, Julia Corso, Ani Gregorian Resnick, Nadege Franken, and Loretta Illustrato

